Shot a thrilling and dramatic por-trayel of process life in northern Min-nesots in the year 1889. Mr. Maurice Costello in this pari plays the noble pioneer lumberman and is seen to leave his wife and fittle child in the little cable, as he leaves for his daily dattes. The piliager band of Chippews Indians have noted this fact, and being naturally hestile, lose no time in attacking the cabin. The faithful wife holds them at buy, killing many of them, until she is reduced to the one sheet. This she saves and, rather than give has child to the rea men, attempts to shoot it herself. In her delirium of the moment her aim is uncertain, and she does not injure the child. Costello in this part plays the noble heard the most shots exchanged, and tries to reach his little home. Neigh-bering lumbermen come to his assistgive and he is soon able to dispel the band of enganed red men, and find his series and child. The sweening wife is perioad and, shown that her child is ministered she immediately revovers, and all ends impiely.

FOETRY.

I REMEMBER-UP TO DATE

The house where I was born,
The house where I was born,
the sight of that lop-sided shack
Today would make me mourn;
The crooked liftle brick-paved wain,
The henhouse in the rear,
With cabbage growing at the side,
And pig-sty rather hear.

I remember, I remember,
The carn-ceb Father had
(A five-cent piece of Navr Piug
In those days made him glad).
The old stove in the kitchen.
And father's stockinged feet—
All that was ere prosperity
Swept us on Rasy street.

I remember, I remember,
The pump in our backyard.
Where father watered all the stock
And found it rather hard.
But now he has another way
And needs no trough or pump.
He waters steck down on the street,
And makes the lambkins jump.

I remember, I remember,
But oh! The changes wrought
Are queerer than the little duke
That sister Helen bought!
Since father goes to twenty clubs,
And mother has her set,
We have no use for member's
We're trying to forget!
